INAUGURAL BULLDOG HALL OF FAME honored

The initial Bulldog Hall of Fame Class was recognized on Friday, Sept. 27 before the homecoming contest against Clear Lake.

Among those honored were:

• The 1926 Hampton Bulldog girls' basketball team, which won the state championship with a 27-0 record. They out-scored their opponents 1,235-334 during the season.

• Bill Hand, coach, who re-started the girls' basketball program in 1961-62 and was the first coach for the girls' track, golf, boys' cross country and girls' cross country teams. His baseball teams also won three conference titles and finished second or third in the conference eight other times.

• Bill Weeks, athlete, who graduated from Hampton in 1947. A three-year starter for the Iowa State Cyclones, was voted an all-conference quarterback his junior and senior seasons at ISU. He played in two college all-star games and was drafted by the Philadelphia Eagles. An Achilles injury suffered in an auto accident prevented him from pursuing a college career, however, he coached high school and college football in New Mexico.

• Jane Heilskov, athlete, who graduated from Hampton in 1976. After all-state honors in basketball, in which she is the school's 6-on-6 scoring leader with 2,727 career points, the Bulldogs went to the state tourney twice during her career. She also golfed at the state meet three times from 1974-76. She went on to play basketball first at William Penn, then the University of Iowa, serving as the Hawkeye team captain her final season.

• Sondra (Shull) Potter, athlete, a 1976 Hampton graduate. She played on the same 6-on-6 basketball teams as Heilskov, earning all-state honors both her junior and senior seasons. She also was a state track and field runner-up in the then-440 race, holding the school record in that event. She also went on to play basketball and run track at William Penn before a knee injury ended her career.

• Dan DeVries, athlete, class of 1980. DeVries lettered in cross country during his high school career, but it is basketball where he made school history. He lettered four times and was an all-stater his junior and senior seasons.

Homecoming 2019 celebrates past, present Bulldogs

The 2019 Hampton-Dumont-CAL Homecoming Week is in the books.

The Bulldogs capped off Homecoming Week Saturday evening with the annual Homecoming dance.

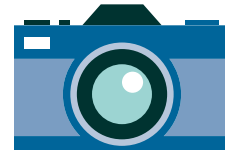

While the Bulldogs dropped a 42-0 decision to Clear Lake Friday night, the loss didn't dampen a week of fun and celebration. Throughout the week, students dressed up for various theme days before ending the week with a black and red spirit day.

Special events included decorating downtown businesses, a powderpuff football game, coronation and the induction of the first Bulldog Hall of Fame class prior to the football game Friday.

As has become tradition, athletic teams, the homecoming court and marching band paraded through the town Friday afternoon before ending at Band Shell Park for a pep rally. The rally included cheers, contests with the football players and a speech by head football coach Andy Bruemmer.

Hampton-Dumont-CAL students and the community packed the gym at Hampton-Dumont-CAL High School for the annual meal packing event. This year's event saw 500 volunteers pack more than 60,000 meals for the hungry and in need across the world. GREG FORBES/HAMPTON CHRONICLE

Meal packing event provides 62,000 meals for the hungry

BY GREG FORBES

This year's meal packing event to benefit Meals from the Heartland had a different setting but the same community heart behind it.

The annual event, which challenges community members to package meals for the hungry throughout the world, was held at the Hampton-Dumont-CAL High School gymnasium this year. In year's past, the event took place at Church of the Living Word.

Chris Sauke, administrator and youth leader for CLW, said that the change in venue was requested by the school's FFA program. The plan was to involve the student body in the project, as Homecoming Week normally features a service endeavor of some sort. Sauke said it was an easy choice to include H-D-CAL students in the annual event.

"The answer was quite easy because that's what it's all about," he said. "Meal packing has always been about community involvement and bringing people together from all walks of life."

"To bring the school district together with the larger community into one project was a no brainer," he added.

Throughout the day last Thursday, 500 people worked to package 62,000 meals. Meals from the Heartland will then partner with other service organizations to distribute those meals to countries across the world in need and to communities locally that have been struck by natural disasters. Meals will also be distributed to local food banks. In 2018 alone, more than 600,000 meals were given to Iowa food banks.

Sauke said he was pleased to see the collaborative effort between the students and the community as a whole to bond together to provide hunger relief to, in many cases, complete strangers.

"The sight of the gym floor filled with students and staff working together was awesome," he said. "Everybody was doing the same thing, working together for the same effort."

"It's just great to see everybody come together," he added.

FUN WITH ENFORCEMENT

Students meet emergency responders at Family Safety Night

BY GREG FORBES

Students last Thursday had a chance to see area law enforcement and emergency responders equipment and vehicles up-close and personal.

North Side Elementary School on Thursday hosted its annual Preschool Family Safety Night. Outside the school, representatives of the Franklin County Sheriff's Office, the Hampton Fire Department, Franklin General EMS, the Butler County Sheriff's Office and the Hampton Police Department allowed students to tour vehicles and see some of the tools they use in the field. Students also received small gifts such as plastic fire helmets and junior police badges.

Elementary Principal Jarod Haeselhuhn said the purpose of the event is to allow students and families the chance to meet emergency responders in a safe, family environment and learn a little bit more about serving in the various departments.

"This is a good way to put faces with emergency personnel," he said. "This helps the kids be aware that they are real people and when they see them, there's no need to be scared."

Haeselhuhn added it's also a good opportunity for newer staff to make connections with law enforcement officials and emergency responders.

"It's nice to meet so many community members and put names to faces," he said. "A lot of these people are parents and volunteers, so it's been wonderful to meet them."

This is the third year the school hosted the event. Preschool teacher Robin Maas said Safety Night is fun for all involved and an anticipated event each year. She said students enjoy seeing the vehicles and equipment while parents have the chance to inform their children about safety.

"It's a really fun night," she said. "Adults have almost as much fun as the kids do."

Tree board plants new trees at Sheriff's office

BY GREG FORBES

The Franklin County Sheriff's Law Enforcement Center grounds received a fresh upgrade last week.

Last Thursday, the Hampton Tree Board planted five new trees outside the sheriff's office. Randy Sanders, Tree Board member, said the group planted a variety of oak trees, including red, white, swamp white and bur oaks. Those trees complement seven others planted by the tree board last spring.

Sanders said the planting efforts are to make up for a loss of ash trees on the office's west side.

The board, Sanders said, is planting a variety of species to avoid large-scale tree loss. Now that the emerald ash borer has been found in Franklin County, Sanders said the tree board needs to be proactive to make sure the community is prepared for a loss of trees.

"They're working with the tree board to replace the ash trees and we're not planting all the same kind," he said. "We knew the ash borer was coming, so this is going to be normal in Hampton."

Sanders said that anyone who suspects their tree is infected by the ash borer or is looking for more information, to contact tree board members.

The Mason City Police Department in a release said the vehicle, driven by Thomas Berk, 24, of Aredale, crashed just south of Highway 122 on California Avenue at 10:44 p.m. Friday. Passengers Madisyn Ensign, 21 of Dumont, and Dominic Clifford, 18, were ejected from the vehicle. Ensign died as a result of her injuries sustained from the crash. Clifford and Berk were hospitalized for their injuries. A fourth passenger, a minor, was treated and released.

The crash remains under investigation. Any information related to the crash can be given to the Mason City Police Department at 641-421-3636.

Hampton man involved in fatal collision

BY GREG FORBES

A Hampton man was involved in a fatal vehicle collision in Webster County last week.

According to a release issued by the Iowa State Patrol, Kirk Gunderson, 58 of Hampton, was driving a semi-trailer west in the right lane on Highway 20 and slowed to turn north onto Vasse Avenue, south of Duncombe in Webster County last Thursday.

As he slowed, a 2017 Subaru Forester behind Gunderson, driven by Ricky Mason, 68 of Dysart, did not slow down and struck the back of Gunderson's vehicle, the release said.

The release said Mason was transported to a hospital in Fort Dodge where he died from his injuries. Gunderson was transported to a Fort Dodge hospital with unknown injuries.

Fall Festival returns to Harriman-Nielsen Sunday

BY GREG FORBES

An expected mild Sunday will provide the perfect setting for one of Franklin County's most cherished fall festivals.

The Harriman-Nielsen Historic Farm Fall Festival returns Sunday, Oct. 6 from 1 to 4 p.m. with an array of activities and attractions for an audience of all ages.

The festival features favorite traditions that appeal to both children and adults. Younger guests can enjoy a kids' carnival, pumpkin picking, a shell corn "sandbox", cider press and corn shelling demonstrations and a petting zoo.

Vendors, a photography booth for family portraits, a grill out featuring bratwursts, bean soup and pie, wagon rides, tall corn, tall sunflower and largest pumpkin contests, and live entertainment. As always, admission and parking are free while food and goods are available for sale.

The festival has become an annual celebration of both Franklin County's agricultural and Danish heritage histories. At the center of the event is the Harriman-Nielsen Historic Farm Home, which was a popular gathering place for travelers on their way to and from Hampton. Guests at the festival are encouraged to take a tour of the house to see a model of an early 1900s Danish farm home as well as artifacts from that era.

Breast Cancer Awareness Month reminds us to be a good neighbor, friend

The calendar has turned over to October, which means this month is Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

Even in smaller communities such as ours, breast cancer and cancer as a whole has touched virtually everyone's lives. Some of us have battled it ourselves while most of the rest of us have friends, family and neighbors who have. It does not discriminate who it affects.

Throughout Breast Cancer Awareness Month, we see pink ribbons on our televisions and in our communities but the ability to make an impact through the month extends beyond a color.

As always, donations can be made to support research for a breast cancer cure and detection and provide resources to those who are battling the disease. There are also direct ways to help those affected in your own community.

Cancer.org provides recommendations how an individual can provide support by simply being a friend or neighbor.

Visits – Arrange short but frequent visits that fit with a loved one's schedule. Visits can be an opportunity to help with housework or other chores or simply be a time to chat and provide support. These visits help an individual with cancer relax while providing companionship.

Conversations – One of the most important pieces of conversation, the website says, is to be understanding of one's emotions and feelings and allow them to feel that way. The website urges individuals to not bring up past behaviors that may have been a cause for cancer or offer medical advice. Instead, gear chats towards what a loved one feels like talking about.

Errands – Offer to take care of simple but valuable tasks. Pet sitting, making meals, providing transportation and other every day tasks can be a huge benefit for a friend and loved one.

These are just a few ways to help. The website contains many more tips and advice but remember, any gesture – big or small – can make a world of difference.

Talking to strangers

My friend Dirk and I were hitching up Harbor Boulevard in Costa Mesa when two guys in an El Camino pulled over. We hopped in the back and soon discovered the driver was inebriated to the point that he was visiting all four lanes randomly, and with us on board. So far, the other cars were dodging us but we bailed at about 35 miles per hour.

Yes, hitchhiking can be dangerous. But when I read the headline to a story in The Wall Street Journal that said, "How to Avoid Talking to Strangers," I still thought... why? Strangers are society's door to new things.

For me, strangers were a way of getting around. What came with it was more valuable than transportation. Here are a couple stories from my hitchhiking days:

After I graduated from high school in 1969, I hitched from California to New York City to see my dad, Rocky, who was a neighbor in Santa Monica before moving to Connecticut, came down and picked me up in his Corvair. (Ask Ralph Nader. It's a miracle we survived.) We drove up to the Newport Jazz Festival in Rhode Island where the promoter had gone nuts and included non-jazz acts as a way to broaden everyone's musical appreciation. Two weeks before Woodstock, George Wein's vision was realized. I never doubted that I made the right choice in passing up Woodstock for Newport. If you are a music fan go to my blog to see the list of legendary performers at Newport 1969.

I got side tracked. I don't remember a long wait or a drunk driver while hitchhiking east. I guess that's a good thing. Often when things go wrong I exclaim, "that's what memories are made of." The gist of it is that 3,000 miles, 18 years old, parents worried sick by their thoughtless and rebellious son, and we all survived.

After high school I moved 500 miles north to attend a small art college in Oakland. I hitched up and down the coast numerous times in those days.

One time I was lucky to get a ride at a super busy on-ramp in San Jose. The driver was a GI headed to an Army base south down the coast. I fell asleep and when I woke up we were several miles down Highway 1. The trouble was that mudslides had closed the highway south of the base and I had to go back north to go south. It was pouring rain but I got a ride back to 101.

In the dark pouring rain motorists saw a poncho with a thumb sticking out. I could have been Charlie Manson for all they knew. When the nearby bar closed I asked the proprietor if there might be a dry place nearby where I could roll out my sleeping bag. He directed me to a row of garages, abandoned because of the new highway.

A pack of about 10 dogs greeted me down there. Luckily there was an island six feet long and 16 inches wide in one of the garages. I was a white settler and the dogs were the Indians. They circled and barked a lot. A Blue Heeler yipped at the hole where I tightened my drawstring for what seemed like all night.

No dogs were there on the bright, sunny morning. The rest of my 500-mile trip was uneventful. Nobody killed me and I wasn't Charlie Manson.

BAD DECISIONS

By now you probably know the legend of Carson King, the 24-year-old college football fan whose chance encounter in front of a camera transformed his joke fundraiser for beer money into a real multi-million dollar fundraiser for a children's hospital.

It was the feel-good story of the year and obviously merited a profile on King by the Des Moines Register.

And, by now, you know what happened next.

Well, to an extent.

In performing a background investigation on King, Des Moines Register reporter Aaron Calvin discovered a couple of tweets King had made as a teenager referencing a racially-charged skit from "Tosh.0." These tweets were somehow deemed newsworthy by the Register, who contacted King for further comment.

From there, the timeline regarding the actions taken by the Des Moines Register, Anheuser-Busch, and King himself makes it unclear as to who knew what, when they knew it, and how. On Tuesday evening, King held a press conference to address the inappropriate tweets. This was before the Des Moines Register ran their feature, but after Anheuser-Busch cut ties with King.

What do seven-year-old tweets King made quoting offensive jokes he saw on Comedy Central have to do with anything?

That is the question that the Des Moines Register has struggled to answer for the last week as they've dealt with the blowback from their perceived attack on the local hero. Carol Hunter, the Register's executive editor, has emphasized in two separate statements the struggle that their editorial staff had in regard to whether or not to publish the information about King's tweets.

I am familiar with these kinds of discussions. Similar discussions are held in our own offices on a semi-regular basis. Determining what is or isn't appropriate to print is sometimes a tricky business.

This wasn't one of those times.

In discussing the matter with my own colleagues, none of us have been able to comprehend how the professional staff of Iowa's most high profile newsroom even contemplated making the decisions they made last week. Even playing Devil's Advocate I can't articulate the argument in favor of putting any kind of spotlight on the tweets in question.

Neither, mind you, can the Des Moines Register. Or at least they haven't yet publicly.

In spite of Hunter releasing an editorial titled "Here's how we reported on Carson King's tweets," the actual argument that seemingly won out in the Register's newsroom is absent. Here's the exact paragraph in question.

"That prompted a discussion involving several Register editors about how best to proceed: Should that material be included in the profile at all? The jokes were highly inappropriate and were public posts. Shouldn't that be acknowledged to all the people who had donated money to King's cause or were planning to do so?"

There is no argument in that paragraph. That's two statements of fact and a rewording of the question that they were already trying to answer. Nothing in that paragraph lays out the thought process that led to the Register deciding to move forward with mentioning the tweets in their profile.

Yes, the tweets were technically public. But only as public as seven-year-old tweets that you would have to intentionally be searching for to find could be. Simply existing in the public space is not a sufficient threshold for newsworthiness.

And yes, the tweets were inappropriate. And?

As far as headlines go "Local man made inappropriate joke as a teenager" ranks right up there with "Grass still green, water still wet." I could have told you Carson King made inappropriate jokes as a teenager without ever looking at his Twitter history. I could tell you the same thing about every adult I have ever written a story on by virtue of the fact that they were all once teenagers.

Due diligence is one thing. It was good that the Register did a background check on King to make sure he didn't have a history of scams, that he wasn't involved in a dog fighting ring, or that he wasn't a defender of the last season of "Game of Thrones."

But unlike another well known Iowa King, there's no indication that Carson King's inappropriate tweets represented a history of racist opinions and behavior. To the best of my knowledge, Carson King hasn't been writing anti-immigrant manifestos or attending Nazi rallies. My own cursory "investigation" into King's Twitter history indicates that he has much stronger opinions about Dr. Pepper than the average person probably should and that's about it.

Frankly, his love of Dr. Pepper seems much more interesting and relevant to his profile than a couple of tweets he didn't even remember making as a teenager, yet that didn't even get a mention in the Register's story.

I take no pleasure in arm-chair quarterbacking the Register's actions on this matter. And let me be clear, this wasn't a "hit-job" or an intentional smearing on the Register's part. Malice was not the cause of this fiasco. Poor judgment was.

It is entirely possible, if not likely, that King's tweets would have resurfaced elsewhere. If Anheuser-Busch discovered them and decided to cut ties with King independently, as appears to be the case, then the Register would have had to report on that anyway. But that would have been a very different story than the one that was written.

The Register is still a good paper that does good and important work. We know this because what happened last week is undeniably out-of-character. We wouldn't be so surprised otherwise. Like King himself, their entire body of work shouldn't be defined by a couple of bad decisions.

But at the same time, this self-inflicted wound not only damages their credibility, but the credibility of the journalism profession as a whole. They've not only embarrassed themselves, they've made life that much harder for the rest of us in the business.

It's no secret that there is a concerted effort by a segment of the population to portray the media as "the enemy" in order to obfuscate their own possible misdeeds. Hostility against reporters in this country is at an unnerving high point.

This pervasive hostility can have dire consequences. Just last year a man murdered five people in an Annapolis newspaper office over their reporting of his guilty plea for criminal harassment. He thought the newspaper had treated him unfairly. That they were the enemy.

If you want to know why police were escorting Register staff into their office last week, things like that are the reason.

This hostility is everywhere. The day before this story unraveled I was just getting back into the country after two weeks in Japan.

In stark contrast to the immaculately polite Japanese, immediately upon returning home I was harassed by a customs agent who, upon learning my profession, thought it appropriate to take a verbal jab at me, asking if "I was one of the honest ones."

This was my "welcome" back to America. Getting trash talked on my birthday after a 10-hour flight by a stranger with a gun. All because I'm the guy whose job it is to go to the city council meetings so the rest of you don't have to.

There are already too many people in this country itching for an excuse to justify their dislike of the media. The Des Moines Register doesn't need to be handing them reasons on a silver platter.

One of Franklin County's most well-known native sons returned home last weekend for a special ceremony commemorating his 20-year political career. Alexander native and current Third Congressional District Rep. To Latham was honored Saturday night during a special program hosted by the Franklin County Republicans at Sheffield's Ridge Stone Golf and Country Club. Latham, who represented Franklin County and other portions of north Iowa for the bulk of his career, is retiring from the U.S. House of Representatives when his term expires at the end of the year. "Going from Alexander, a town of 168 people, to Washington D.C., is an amazing trip and a change in your whole world basically," he said. "I can't help but think of all the people that made it possible for someone from Alexander to be able to walk across that street in Washington and see that done."

Sheril Brodbeck of Hampton State Bank was recently honored by the Iowa Bankers Association (IBA) for more than 50 years of service at a bank. A native to Dumont, Brodbeck joined Hampton State Bank in 1996. Her prior banking experience was at the State Bank of Dumont and Liberty Bank. She has served in many capacities during her banking career and currently is senior loan processor and a key member of the loan administration team and compliance committee at Hampton State Bank.

Only five weeks into the 2014 football season, Hampton-Dumont is already making its mark. HERE'S HOW IT WORKS: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

The next 20 years were spent traveling with Loren around the globe as a military wife and mother to their four daughters. She loved the adventure of Air Force life. Betty worked as an RN at the Plattsmouth Care Center in Plattsmouth, Nebraska. In 1978, Loren retired from the Air Force, and they moved back home to Alden. She then worked as an RN and eventually became the Director of Nursing at Scenic Manor in Iowa Falls. Betty's passions included her family, gardening, decorating birthday cakes, taking care of her cabin "Iowaknoll," going to Iowa State football and basketball games and being the hostess of many family gatherings. She thought that her table was the heart of her family and anyone that came to her table would be well-nourished, cared for and welcomed. Cinnamon rolls, tapioca, bread pudding, sauerkraut and noodles, homemade pickles, grape jelly, dozens of Christmas cookies and treats, sugar-cinnamon toast with hot chocolate and her infamous candy drawer were just some of her specialties. Betty believed food healed all ailments, or at least made them better!

Betty lived a real life, not one that was sugar-coated. Her wisdom, off-handed humor, and her compassion was matched only by her hard-exterior, and her "I will fight for what I believe attitude". It wasn't always easy for her and she knew what it meant to fight right down to the end. Above all, she loved her husband with a fierce intensity that lasted 58 years. We are certain that along with God, Loren was waiting at the gates of heaven for her. Their reunion must certainly have been a sight to see.

Betty is survived by her four daughters: Vicki (Steve) Sukup, and their children Nickolas, Crystal (Matt) Koch, and Emily (Andy) Schmitt, of Clear Lake; Lori (Tom) Hemphill, and their children Clay and Jared of Omaha; Juli Larson, and her children Luke (Brittany) Erickson, Lauren (Josh) Heuberger, of Sheffield; and Jami Aldrich, and her son Jackson of Johnston; great-grandchildren: Lily, Zander, and Grace Koch, Wynn and Celia Schmitt, and Larson and Eloise Heuberger; brother Edward (Lois) Ites, of Iowa Falls; brother-in-law, Don (Karen) Larson, of Santa Ana, Calif.; sister-in-law, Janice Larson, of Kansas City; and too many cousins and friends, including her four-legged granddogs to print.

She was preceded in death by her high school sweetheart and husband, Loren; brother, Richard, and his wife Phyllis Ites; brother-in-law, Almen Larson; parents-in-law, Almen O. and Anna Mae Larson; and parents, Richard Sr. and Anna Margaret Ites.

The God Within Us
We are sometimes capable of doing things that, realistically, we shouldn't be able to do. Stories of people lifting cars off of people trapped underneath, or otherwise going beyond the limits of human ability or endurance are well-documented. The phenomenon of "second wind" is known to every endurance athlete, where seemingly out of nowhere, an untapped reserve of energy becomes available, and the athlete who was slowing down now has a burst of energy. There are also times when it just feels as if we are possessed by some external (or perhaps internal) force. Athletes and actors can be so lost in their performance that they are scarcely aware of what they are doing, just as writers sometimes say they feel that some outside force is directing their thoughts. The word "enthusiasm" is interesting in this regard: its origin is the Greek word "entheos," meaning possessed, or literally, having a god within us. When we are enthusiastic, it is as if there is a god or spirit within us. Most religions have some notion that God has breathed His spirit into us. Christianity makes much of this notion, and it is worth reflecting on the myriad ways in which the God within us affects our lives, allowing us to do things which we would otherwise be incapable of, or in our conscience, which is the voice of God within us, or simply by inspiring us to live a more spirit-filled life. — Christopher Simon

"Do you not know that you are the temple of God and that the Spirit of God dwells in you?"

The school was able to purchase one set of the goggles through school funding and another thanks to a $5,000 grant from Mission Possible received through the Franklin County Community Foundation.

During the lesson, students were able to get up close and personal with stationary models including a shark and a human heart. However, the goggles also allow a student to be dropped in the middle of a live situation. Gasps and excited shrieks could be heard as the students encountered a polar bear in the arctic, a Great White shark deep in the ocean and saw Central Park in New York City from an eagle eye view.

The goggles will be shared between Hampton-Dumont and CAL. In an earlier interview with the Hampton Chronicle, technology director Steve Waage said that the goggles, along with other VR and AR software already in use at the district, gives students immersive and lifelike experiences with things and places they may not have the chance to see in person.

"This makes learning more active than passive," Waage said in the interview. "It's immersive. They can get fabulous visualizations that can be hard to learn or understand as abstract ideas."

Dellinger said his pies are 100 percent made from scratch, contain real, natural ingredients and are baked-to-order.

"I use home grown fruit and everything is homemade and made from scratch," he said. "All the ingredients are high quality."

Dellinger said he's been baking since he was a kid, but his family's involvement in the craft extends beyond his youth. His grandfather, Chester, worked in bakeries in Fort Dodge and Clarion, then Ames before retiring in the 1970s.

"He lost the bakery in Clarion because he was drafted in World War II," Dellinger recalled. "He didn't end up going but still had to lose the bakery since he was drafted."

The baking passion in his family trickled down from his grandfather to his parents and eventually reached Dellinger himself.

"Growing up, I would bake with my parents and I just really liked it," he said.

He said while his recipes are mostly from his head, he uses inspiration from both his grandfather's ingredients and his time baking with his parents to give his creations an added touch.

He added that he wanted to dive into the pie making venture to keep the art of baking alive and provide fresh-baked goods to the community following the closure of the Korner Bakery.

"Today, a lot of people haven't been taught how to bake pies," he said. "It's kind of a dying art. I thought there was a need here for homemade pies."

Favorable reviews of his slices by the public, including a successful sale at the Trinity Lutheran Church booth at the Franklin County Fair, gave Dellinger the idea to turn his passion into a small business. Those comments he received, he said, gave him the confidence and encouragement to begin selling his pies on a wider, more frequent scale.

Dellinger said anyone wanting to order a pie can contact him at jeffsinquiries@yahoo.com and can find a menu on posters that will be posted in the community or at the Jeff's Pies and More Facebook page or by calling him at 641-430-0161. He said he would like customers to place orders three days in advance. Pies are baked and given to a customer in a glass pie plate wrapped in a towel and therefore, orders come with an $8 deposit. Transactions are cash only. Specifics on where to pick up the pies will be given after an order is made.

Dellinger said he's excited to get his business started and encourages anyone looking for a baked good for a special occasion to give him a call.

"Everyone likes pie," he said. "We've all heard of birthday cakes, but have you ever tried a birthday pie?"

He added that not only is he ready to share his creations with others, but wants to do so because of the personal joy it gives him to see people enjoy his baked goods.

"I'm excited," he said. "It puts a big smile on my face."

Gregg said these visits are important because it gives him a firsthand look at how rural Iowa businesses navigate and address some of the main issues that affect various industries.

"From our perspective, it gives us an opportunity to get outside the bubble of Des Moines," he said. "We're very proud of the prosperity our capitol city and those thriving suburbs but it's important to us that there be opportunity and prosperity in rural parts of our state too."

"Part of understanding the challenges that rural communities face is going and talking with the people there and hearing the things that are not only going right, but also the things we can do better as a state," he added.

Gregg said the number one issue he regularly sees is the inability to fill skilled labor jobs. He and Gov. Kim Reynolds have worked through Future Ready Iowa to invest in community colleges, apprenticeships and forge partnerships in local schools to produce more workers to fill those needs.

"The most common issue we hear about is workforce and finding skilled labor to fill positions that are available," he said. "The biggest problem we have in the state of Iowa is we have more jobs than we have people to fill them."

He added that the focus has also been on developing housing to attract a workforce to communities.

"That affects our ability to grow," he said. "It's hard to recruit workers if there isn't a nice place for them to live and it's hard to grow our population if there isn't a nice place to live."

Aside from issues that face rural Iowa's industries, Gregg also briefly sounded off on a couple of topics he sees the state facing as the year winds down, such as the Renewal Fuel Standard and small refinery exemptions as well as the weather throughout the remainder of the crop season.

Latimer City Council

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
CITY OF LATIMER
UNAPPROVED MINUTES
SEPTEMBER 11, 2019

The Latimer City Council met in regular session at Latimer City Hall on Wednesday, September 11, 2019. Mayor Mark Johansen called the meeting to order at 6:30 pm with council members: Randy DeBour, Catherine Crooks, Landon Plagge, Eric Bruns and Shaun Koenen answering roll call.

Mayor Johansen led all in attendance in the Pledge of Allegiance followed by a moment of silence to remember the 9/11 attack on the US.

The agenda was approved by a motion made by Koenen and seconded by DeBour. Motion passed unanimously.

The Director of City Maintenance reported that the water pipe at 402 Olk Drive has been fixed and it appeared to have been fixed 4 times prior. The new drainage tile at the water tower has been install and has worked very well with all the rain we have had. He also reported that Harrison Truck Center in Clear Lake has the garbage truck and is waiting on a recalled replacement part from Cummins before it will be fixed. We continue to request the assistance of the City of Thornton, however, are eager to get our truck back.

The City Clerk reported that it is election filing time through the 19th of September. Papers can be picked up at City Hall and candidates have until 5 p.m. on Sept. 19, 2019, to get the 10 signatures and turn the papers in. Friday, September 20, 2019, she will be turning in all the papers to the County Auditor to get ready for the election that will be held on 11/5/19. She reported that, with the help of Bruns, she invited all the students from CAL and St. Paul's Schools (over 120 kids) to the park on Tuesday 9/10 and took pictures to be used in a video for a contest to win a custom designed water tower. The clerk finished her report reminding the council of the conference she and Wayne will be attending on Sept. 25-27 in Dubuque.

The Mayor reported that the addition of concrete is complete at the splash pad for a bench and picnic table. Also, areas by the bank, 402 Olk Dr, and gas station were filled in to fix holes from water or wire fixes the City had. He also reported he has had a few people talk to him about appreciating the tile by the golf course being cleaned out. It has helped with their water problems on their property.

A thank you was passed around from the CAL Foundation regarding the $800 annual donation the City made to their scholarship fund.

Following the reports, DeBour made a motion to approve the minutes from the regular meeting held on August 14, 2019 and was seconded by Plagge. Motion passed unanimously.

DeBour made a motion approve the bills to be paid with the addition of the bill for the concrete work to be paid once it is received. This motion was seconded by Crooks and passed with majority as Koenen abstained from voting to due conflict of interest.

Next, the council reviewed the Budget Report, Revenue Report and Fund Balance Report presented by the clerk. The clerk explained that she attached an additional file to the Council packets this month including proposed budget amendments that will be done at next month's meeting.

In old business, the Mayor reported that he talked with Lohrbach Insurance regarding the community gym idea and stated there is a questionnaire that will need to be filled out to get a better idea of what insurance the City will need to have for the building.

In new business, the council discussed the vandalism that took place in Latimer's East Park bathrooms and decided that the bathrooms will remain locked at East Park, however, the bathrooms at West Park will be unlocked from 9 am to 9 pm while the splash pad is open. The council then decided to have the splash pad open through the 16th of September to hopefully allow for one more weekend of fun on the Splash pad before the winter. They discussed options regarding the security of the parks including cameras or different locks and decided they would like to get more information on automatic locking doors for the bathrooms, that can be programmed to be locked during overnight hours.

An annual evaluation was done on the Director of City Maintenance before the meeting by Mayor Johansen and pro-tem Mayor Crooks.

Plagge made a motion approve Resolution 2019-9 setting the wages for the Director of City Maintenance to include a 3% ($1,232.00) increase per year. This motion was seconded by Bruns and passed with a unanimous roll call vote. Bruns made a motion at 7:40 p.m., to adjourn the meeting and was seconded by DeBour. Motion passed unanimously.

STUDENTS, TEACHERS, AND COOKS LEND A HAND, AND AN EAR

Here in Iowa there aren't many who wouldn't consider sweet corn our state food. Grown by hard-working local farmers, it's a staple of summer in the Midwest. On September 11th, students in Jane Hoegh's Bulldog Cafe classes and Sarah DeBour's Ag students shucked around 350 ears of corn so that the H-D student body could enjoy sweet corn in addition to their usual school lunch.

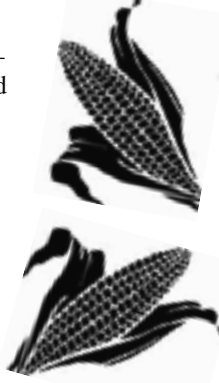

After prep was done by students, the high school cafeteria staff took over from there. The team prepared the corn, making it ready for students to enjoy.

On September 12th, when students went through the lunchline they were given full ears of corn.

It was the USDA Farm-to-School Grant that funded the local corn which was grown locally at Puffer Roske Farms. Jane Hoegh says, "The local food movement is beneficial to students because they are so nutrient-rich."

Bulldogs try different players mid-match in four-set loss to Clear Lake

BY KRISTI NIXON
HAMPTON – Bulldogs' head coach Kelli Showalter, in an effort to shake things up for her team mid-match, switched her lineup a bit in order to set a fire under them. It worked temporarily for the Bulldogs, nabbing the third set, but they found themselves down 6-0 to start the fourth in an eventual 27-25, 25-14, 20-25, 25-16 Clear Lake win on Tuesday, Sept. 24.

Don't expect those changes to last, however. "I trust who I have in there," Showalter said. "You have off-nights and it's not working. I don't feel changing the line-ups...they've earned their positions; one night doesn't mean they aren't going to have their positions (taken away)."

"I was just trying something so we could win, I had to do something when we had a lot of missed blocks, shanked passes. You have to do something to change it up."

Coach Showalter and the Bulldogs had their chances in the opening set, leading 20-17 before a lift, a push-kill by Kaitlyn Vanderploeg and a hitting error tied it at 21, forcing Showalter to call timeout.

But after the break, Delaney Eden, who recorded a match-high 20 kills put down two of them over the next three points and Julia Merfeld's ace made it 24-22.

It wasn't over at the point, however, because two straight Lion hitting errors tied the set at 24 and one of Courtney Miller's 10 kills for the Bulldogs gave them set point, prompting a Clear Lake timeout. Out of the time, a hitting error and a tip by Eden gave the Lions the momentum.

The second set featured a long serving run by Merfeld who turned around an 11-10 Bulldog lead to a 19-11 Lion advantage that finally ended after an extended rally on a hitting error by Alexxa Whitehouse. But Clear Lake's lead by that point was too great.

Clear Lake actually led 8-2 to start the third set before the lineup changes and the Bulldog rally. During that rally, Miller had three of her kills, a tip by Avery Hanson, a kill by Tara Krull and ace serves by Kaci Arjes and Miller tied the match at 10 before a Lions' timeout. Out of the break, Krull went kill-block-kill before ending her streak. Krull finished the night with six kills, three blocks and tied for the team lead in assists with Kaci Arjes with 12.

Libero Maci Arjes finished with 28 digs.

The Lions roared out to a 6-0 lead in the fourth set with three kills by Eden and three Bulldog hitting errors. The Lions were also getting breaks with net serves getting a roll over the net and free balls also dropping.

The Bulldogs fell to 6-9 overall, 0-4 in the North Central Conference with a match against 3A state-ranked Humboldt looming. Clear Lake improved to 7-11, 1-3 NCC.

No. 2 Lions' big plays spoil Bulldog homecoming

BY KRISTI NIXON
HAMPTON — The Bulldogs came out with a lot of fire for their homecoming game, but Class 2A No. 2 Clear Lake had other ideas.

After forcing the Lions to go 3-and-out on their opening possession, the visitors returned the favor, benefitted from a recovery on a punt and then made big play after big play to take the lead for good in an eventual 42-0 win on Friday, Sept. 27.

"Big plays," Bulldog head coach Andy Bruemmer said. "We had chances for tackles, to stop a big play, somebody would run through two or three arm tackles instead of putting their shoulder in and driving their feet, taking their extra step."

"We were trying to arm tackle and that's just bad fundamentals."

A fumble recovery by Jordan Severs on a pass completion from Jaylen DeVries to Jagger Schmitt which was knocked free by Wyatt Sutter, had the Bulldogs' in good field position, but they went backwards and were forced to punt, giving the ball back where the Lions scored again.

"(We were looking to) score," Bruemmer said. "We were looking to score, just didn't happen tonight. The last couple of home games, we just haven't had it."

"We're going to get it turned around and go back to work on Monday."

Penning rushed for 134 yards, his longest on the night a 45-yarder. Also scoring offensive touchdowns for coach James Koop's squad were Cale Culver and Brody Roder. Penning also returned an interception 47 yards for a score.

Other turnovers garnered by the Cougars were Trey Lashbrook for a 19-yard return and Riley Sicard with a fumble recovery.

Leading the defense was Jaden Penning, who finished with 7.5 tackles, including a sack of Meskwaki's quarterback.

Possibilities are endless Warhawks impress at home cross country meet

BY KRISTI NIXON
ROCKWELL — Class 1A fifth-ranked West Fork's top-five runners know they have something special.

Among them, the lone senior Josh Reiter can't help but be excited about the thought of what the Warhawks can do in the postseason.

All five of coach Mark Twedt's scorers finished among the top-12 at its home meet on Monday, Sept. 23 to easily win the meet with 43 points.

"It's great," Reiter said. "We're all proud of what we can do, when we get there and are the first group of people to pass the line, that's a great feeling to do it together."

Ask Reiter and he knows his teammates all finished high and within mere seconds of each other. Jakob Washington was the first Warhawk across the line in 17 minutes, 19.48 seconds. He was followed by Reiter, eighth in 18:05.76; Ren Heimer was ninth, less than two seconds back and both Cail Weaver and Noah Maske were 11-12, respectively, and only three seconds back of Heimer.

"We're feeling pretty good about that," Reiter said. "All of our meets, we really don't have a team to worry about too much."

The only team, in fact, to give West Fork a battle was a Class 3A team that edged the Warhawks last week at Clear Lake.

"That was fun to give us a challenge," Reiter said of his team's first runner-up finish. "(It) makes us run faster, makes us better."

Forest City's Joey Hovinga won the meet with a time of 17:06.86 with Lake Mills' lead runner Carson Rygh not competing at the meet.

Reiter has seen the previous state cross country teams at West Fork, the runner-up teams of 2013 and 2014 and he knows that the Warhawks have the potential to come close.

"I'm hoping we can cut a bit more time off, get into the 17:40s, possibly," Reiter said. "Hopefully, (we'll go to) state and placing high. I think we're getting there (to the state-caliber level), we have a little bit to go to get there, but I think we're getting there."

Meanwhile, the West Fork girls finished runner-up as a team behind state-ranked Mason City Newman behind a second-place individual finish for Kacie Eisentrager.

The sophomore used a strategy of sticking behind Class 1A No. 22 Lindsey Davidson for the first mile and a half. Though the eventual winner put distance between her, second place was Eisentrager's alone.

"I really know that when I stick with her that I can get a better time and that's what I've been wanting to get this whole year," Eisentrager said. "And I knew that I really wanted to beat Chloe (Nelson of Mason City Newman) today, so I knew I had to stick with her and I did."

Davidson won the girls' title in 20:30 while Eisentrager came across in 21:24. Mycah Weaver was fourth behind Nelson in 21:58 as the Warhawk girls scored 57 points to finish behind the Lady Knights (31).

Also included in coach Twedt's team scoring were Jordan Swenson (15), Raelynn Nash (17) and Sydney Nuehring (19).

"I think we need to stay more together as a pack," Eisentrager said of her team's chances in the postseason, "if we do that, we'll be sitting pretty well."

Second-ranked Osage stops West Fork

OSAGE — Class 2A No. 2 Osage wasted little time in sweeping West Fork at its place on Tuesday, Sept. 24.

The Green Devils held the Warhawks to single digits in two of the three sets, winning 25-8, 25-7, 25-12.

In fact, coach Abbee Dickman's team managed just four kills against the 16-1 team, two by Emily Caspers.

West Fork was 27-of-27 serving against Osage, but tallied no ace serves. Kalli Trewin and Kylie Laudner each recorded a block and Laudner finished with two assists. Maddie Hubka led the team with six of 15 digs.

The Warhawks fell to 3-6 overall, 2-3 in the Top of Iowa East Conference.

Warhawks top B-K in OT

BELMOND — A gutsy two-point conversion stop in overtime was what West Fork's football team needed to escape with a 21-20 win at Belmont-Klemme on Friday, Sept. 27.

Ian Latham scored twice and Brett Weaver's 19-yard touch-down run with six minutes left in regulation with a two-point conversion run by Latham completed the Warhawks' comeback.

Latham finished with 176 yards rushing for coach James Perez's team, which improved to 3-2.

"Feels great," Perez said of the win. "(We) need to keep improving every week in all aspects of the game like we have the last three weeks and cannot get complacent."

On the two-point conversion attempt, freshman Josiah Chibambo stood up the Broncos' ball carrier, Brett Weaver made the stop and the rest of the Warhawks' defense rallied to the ball to end it.

Chibambo led West Fork with 9.5 tackles.

Quarterback Kellen Cameron completed 50 percent of his passes (5-of-10) for 102 yards, but was intercepted once.

Brayden Vold caught four of his passes for 85 yards.

The Warhawks return home this Friday to take on GTRA (1-4).

This Week's Cup Series Race: Drydene 400

Race Details	Race Preview
Location: Dover, Del. Date: Sunday, Oct. 6, 2:30 p.m. Last Year's Pole: Kyle Busch Last Year's Winner: Chase Elliott	The Drydene 400 is the fourth race in the NASCAR Cup Series' Monster Energy NASCAR Cup Series playoffs. In 2020, the race will be removed from the NASCAR playoffs and be held as the penultimate race of the regular season. Dover International Speedway, nicknamed "The Monster Mile", was built in 1969 by Melvin Joseph of Melvin L. Joseph Construction Company, Inc., with an asphalt surface, but was replaced with concrete in 1995. Six years later in 2001, the track's capacity moved to 135,000 seats. Twice a year, they pack the stands to watch the drivers of the Monster Energy NASCAR Cup Series battle fender to fender for victory.

Christopher Bell to compete in the Cup Series with Leavine Family Racing in 2020

Christopher Bell officially became the newest young NASCAR talent to sign a deal to race in the sport's premier series, as Leavine Family Racing announced Tuesday afternoon that Bell will drive the team's No. 95 Toyota in the NASCAR Cup Series ranks beginning in 2020. Bell is currently a seven-race winner and 2019 championship contender in the NASCAR Xfinity Series driving the No. 20 Toyota for Joe Gibbs Racing. His present Xfinity Series crew chief Jason Ratcliff will retain the same position with Bell at the Cup level with LFR. Bell also brings sponsorship from Rheem and Procure and his new team is already aligned with the Joe Gibbs Racing organization he currently competes with, easing the transition. "It's kind of like Christmas early," team owner Bob Leavine told the racing media Tuesday. "It's a pretty special time for LFR. Everyone here ... is all excited about our possibilities." Bell, a 24-year-old Oklahoma native, has quickly become one of NASCAR's next-generation stars. He won five races en route to the 2017 NASCAR Gander Outdoors Truck Series championship and then won seven races in his first full Xfinity Series season while finishing fourth in the 2018 championship standings. His move to the Cup ranks this season was seen as inevitable by most racing insiders.

DeVries, a Southern Illinois University commit, was 16-of-29 passing for 305 yards and six touchdowns. His primary target, Nick Danielson, caught seven passes for 114 yards and three of the scores.

The Bulldogs have now faced both the second- and third-ranked teams in the state (Algona and Clear Lake) and Bruemmer says both are worthy of their accolades.

"They're both very good football teams," Bruemmer said. "I think we had a shot at both of them, but we didn't play well enough in either one and that's my fault, that's on me. It's my job to get my kids ready to play and the defense wasn't really ready."

"Offensively, we'll figure it out. We have to do it consistently. We were consistent last week (against Clarion-Goldfield), we were good, we blocked the right guys. This week, we have to go over the film and see what we're doing. We'll go back and correct it."

More and more players for the Bulldogs went to the sideline after being dinged up throughout the course of the game to add to those who have been out for at least a few weeks.

"We've got a lot of dinged up kids," Bruemmer said. "It's the middle of the season, we're going to have the little 'owies.' We've got some other injuries that are handled correctly. We don't want to hurry them back too fast."

However, on the good news front, the Bulldogs saw the return of senior Matt Waddingham, who saw late action, carrying the ball twice for 11 yards.

"He got medically cleared last week," Bruemmer said. "When he brought me the slip from the doctor, I went, 'wow.' Didn't know that was going to happen."

Sophomore quarterback Cal Heeren was sacked eight times for negative-65 yards, leaving the Bulldogs with negative-23 total rushing yards and a net of 10 with Heeren's 33 yards passing.

Next up for the Bulldogs is Forest City on the road this Friday night. The Indians are also 1-4 with their only win also over CGD.

"I'll design a plan for next week's practices and get ready for Forest City film," Bruemmer said.
